

Copyleaks is Hiring

QA Engineer

This is a full time position from our Kiryat Shmona office

Copyleaks is a leading AI based content authentication platform that is focused on developing cutting edge technology to detect plagiarism and copyright infringement and support original writing. We are working with some of the biggest enterprises and publishers in the world and are looking for an experienced and innovative QA engineer that will help take our solutions to the next level.

Requirements

- BS.c in Computer science (or any other relevant degree).
- 1+ years of professional experience with development in Python.
- Experienced in using HTTP RESTful API.
- Understanding of testing methodologies.
- Experience in writing unit testing and UI testing.
- Independent, fast learner and highly motivated.

Responsibilities

- Implementing complex automated tests.
- Works with other departments to participate in specification, design, code, and test reviews.
- Improves existing programs by analyzing and identifying areas for alteration.
- Contributes to project planning and project management.
- Interacts with all internal and external sources necessary to successfully complete assignments.
- Performs other duties as assigned.

Competencies

- Analysis
- Assessment/evaluation
- Attention to detail
- Communication - written and oral skills
- Consult with and receive feedback constructively from co-workers on projects
- Creativity
- Organization
- Knowledge of relevant policies and procedures
- Problem identification and resolution
- Computer network and computer systems
- Works independently as well as part of a team
- Must be a fast learner

To apply, send your CV to jobs@copyleaks.com